

Dying to Live, by Tate Faranello

Stuck behind 4 bars
They still don't have a signal
It's kinda funny cause now
The whole world's digital
This time in our lives is pivotal
I'm stuck in the middle
Can't seem to decide whether or not
Half the people here are really people
Some of them r doing bad stuff
Crossing over the line
Into the realm of evil
I'll never know what it feels like
But just thinking bout the struggles doesn't sit right
We're all people, everybody's equal
Living in this same life
If we can't get along
We won't have what it takes to survive
This isn't right.

We should treat each other like roses
We're all different colors
All got different poses
We should all be equal like the roses
The time to change is now
We can't let it slip under our noses
Roses are beautiful and brilliant
Determined and resilient
We can't get together right now
So we should think of a plan and try to build it
It's gonna be tough
But we can do it
I can feel it
